Teachers exit the training confident and fully prepared to deliver the Program curriculum in their schools. They can they start helping their students acquire critical technology skills right away.

Lourdes Guyong, a Master Trainer from Nangka High School said, "The most valuable thing about the training was that we were given so many inputs on the importance of technology in enhancing the teaching-learning process. The training taught me to be more creative and innovative. I was able to realize how effective my lessons would be if I integrate technology in my lessons.
